DBQ 18: Imperialism in Africa: An Evaluation

Historical Context:

European imperialism in the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries resulted in the carving up of areas of Africa and Asia into vast colonial empires. This was true for most of the continent of Africa. As imperialism spread, the colonizer and the colony viewed imperialism differently. They saw both positive and negative effects of imperialism.

This excerpt is adapted from Imperialism by J. A. Hobson, a British scholar.

The period of imperialism has witnessed many wars. Most of these wars have been caused by attacks of white races upon so-called “lower races.” They have resulted in the taking of territory by force. . . . The white rulers of the colonies live at the expense of the natives. Their chief work is to organize labor for their support. In the typical colony, the most fertile lands and the mineral resources are owned by white foreigners. These holdings are worked by natives under their direction. The foreigners take wealth out of the country. All the hard work is done by natives.

Sekou Toure, an African nationalist, pointed out another negative aspect of imperialism.

Colonialism’s greatest misdeed was to have tried to strip us of our responsibility in conducting our own affairs and convince us that our civilization was nothing less than savagery, thus giving us complexes which led to our being branded as irresponsible and lacking in self-confidence.

The resolution of the All-African People’s Conference, held in Accra, Ghana in 1958, “condemns colonialism and imperialism” based on these premises.

Whereas all African peoples ... deplore the economic exploitation of African people by Imperialist Countries, thus reducing Africans to poverty in the midst of plenty ... Whereas fundamental human rights, freedom of speech, freedom of association, freedom of movement, freedom of worship, freedom to live a full and abundant life ... are denied to Africans through the activities of Imperialists.

George H. T. Kimble, in a 1962 New York Times Magazine article, “Colonialism: the Good, the Bad, the Lessons,” gives his point of view.

... they [the colonial powers] failed to provide the African with sufficient [preparation] ... None of the newly independent countries had enough skilled African administrators to run their own ... [or] enough African technicians to keep the public utilities working. ... And no country had an electorate that knew what independence was all about. ... For all its faults, colonial government provided security of person and property in lands that had known little of either. ... It was the colonial powers who were largely responsible for the opening of the region to the lumberman, miner, planter, and other men of means without whom its wealth would be continued to lie fallow [uncultivated].

This poem by David Diop is from An Anthology of West African Verse.

The White Man killed my father,
My father was proud.
The White Man seduced my mother,
My mother was beautiful.
The White Man burnt my brother beneath the noonday sun,
My brother was strong.
His hands red with black blood
The White Man turned to me;
And in the Conqueror's voice said,
"Boy! a chair, a napkin, a drink."

This excerpt, adapted from Balance Sheets of Imperialism by Grover Clark, points out other negative aspects of imperialism.

The struggle for colonies does not result only in cash losses. There were also lives lost, wars fought, and hatreds aroused which threatened new wars. . . . Italy's trade with her colonies in 1894–1932 was worth 5,561 million lire [about $1,100 million]. This was less than one percent of her total foreign trade in the same period. In fact her expenditures on colonies for that time was 6,856 million lire. Obviously colonies cost more than they are worth in trade.

What evidence does this author provide to show that colonies were a negative financial drain on the Europeans?
